Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Fifteenth Annual Report of the Chemical Division of the Laboratory of Hygiene It was soon realized that wholesomeness and cleanliness in food and drugs could be obtained only by control at the source of production and places of distribution. This control was secured through the passage of the Sanitary Food Law of 1909. Under the provisions of both the Pure Food Law and the Sanitary Food Law all state, county, city and town health officers are deputies of the State Department This arrangement greatly facilitates cooperative work between the State Department and local health departments. A splendid example of this cooperation was the Investigation of infected olives during the latter part of 1919, which had caused serious botulinus poisoning in several states. Within a few days through the assistance of local health officers every lot of ripe olives of any considerable size was located and the investigation quickly completed. Many special investigations have been carried on with the aid of these officers who have shown great willingness to cooperate at all times. The similarity of the Federal and Indiana Pure Food and Drug Laws has greatly facilitated cooperative work between this Department and the Federal Bureau of Chemistry. The Department has referred evidence in a number of interstate cases which it could not adjust to the Federal Bureau. During the fiscal year inspectors of the Department collected about fifty Federal drug samples, on which at least thirteen seizures were made by the Government Through such cooperative work much misbranded and adulterated merchandise is removed from the Indiana markets. During the year the Food and Drug Department has continued its efforts to enforce the laws prohibiting...
