

The Bickerstaff-Partridge Papers

By Jonathan Swift

Createspace, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Isaac Bickerstaff Esq was a pseudonym used by Jonathan Swift as part of a hoax to predict the death of then famous Almanac-maker and astrologer John Partridge. All Fools Day (now known as April Fools Day which falls on 1 April) was Swift s favourite of holidays and he often used this day to aim his satirically biting wit at non-believers in an attempt to make sin and folly bleed. Disgruntled by Partridge s sarcastic attack about the infallible Church written in his 1708 issue of Merlinus Almanac, Swift projected carefully 3 letters and one Eulogy as an elaborate plan to predict Partridge s infallible death to be revealed on April 1, All Fools Day. The first of the three letters, Predictions for the Year 1708, published in January 1708, predicts, among other things, the death of Partridge by a raging fever. The second letter, The Accomplishment of the First of Mr. Bickerstaff s Predictions, published in March 1708, Swift writes not as Bickerstaff but as a man employed in the Revenue where he confirms the imaginary Bickerstaff...
