Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Department of Civil Engineering It must not be supposed, however, that any of these options fits a student only for the special line of work peculiar to it. On the contrary, the course is arranged on such a broad basis, and the training gained in the different studies is such, that a graduate in any Option is qualified to engage in work in either of the other lines, although, of course, to less advantage, at first, than in his chosen branch. Attention should here be called to the fact that since the introduction of these options into Course I., the rapid development of sanitary engineering, and the closer relations which have come to exist between the sanitary engineer, the chemist, and the biologist, have led to the adoption of a specific course in Sanitary Engineering (course XI.) in which certain purely engineering studies of Course I. are replaced by work in Chemistry and Biology. As a special circular has been issued relating to this course, it is sufficient to say here that it is designed for students who...
