Accountability Office, 2007 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)156949222 Subject: Counseling -- United States. Excerpt: . . . 14 providing counselors with adequate training and experience. The rule also established procedures permitting the Trustee Program to remove agencies from the approved list, including an administrative review 15 process before removal. As with credit counseling providers, the Bankruptcy Act also established minimum qualification standards for debtor education providers. For example, the act stated that these entities must provide personnel with adequate experience and training and use appropriate learning materials and teaching methodologies. The act also required that the provider have adequate facilities in reasonably convenient locations or, alternatively, provide instruction by telephone or through the Internet. Debtor education providers also must keep records to permit evaluation of a courses effectiveness. The act does not require debtor education providers to be nonprofit entities. The Trustee Programs interim final rule set forth application procedures and specified the certification standards for an agency's instructors, established course procedures and recordkeeping 16 requirements, and identified the topics that the courses must include. The Trustee Program established the Credit Counseling and Debtor The Trustee Program Education Unit in June 2005 to implement the relevant provisions of the Developed an Approval Bankruptcy Act, which went into effect in October 2005. Because the Process Designed to Help Trustee Program had no prior experience or expertise in this area, the unit Ensure Compliance with sought input from a wide variety of stakeholders, including state and Statutory and Program federal agencies, credit counseling representatives, consumer advocates, Requirements and academics. In June 2005, the unit developed application forms and 17 procedures and a basic process for app. . . This item ships...
