Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | Estimation, Prediction, Bayesian and non-Bayesian approaches | Censoring is very common in life testing experiments and reliability studies. Progressive first-failure-censoring and an adaptive progressive Type II censoring schemes will be a good choice in this situation. Also, record values and associated statistics are of great importance in several real life problems. There are a number of situations in which an observation is retained only if it is a record value. In this...
