Copper Canyon Press, 2011. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. Marianne Boruch s work has the wonderful, commanding power of true attention. --The Washington Post [H]er patience, her willingness to wait for the film of familiarity to slip, allows her to see what is there with a jeweler s sense of facet and flaw. --Poetry magazine Endearingly strange, unsentimental, and uniquely structured, in true Rilkean fashion The Book of Hours questions the meaning and significance of everything from the flaws of human interaction to perfect posture. Unrelenting honesty and exacting description are coupled with the trials of a dying mother, saint shadows, birds, and shit drying to chalk. My mother s body to wires, to tubes and their liquid, days she turned toward me or away, winter but so much sun from car to door. I followed it past nurses at their station talking movies, who s good in one and not the other. Gown tied at the back and neck, she slept beside a window. I wedged my chair there, reading, looking up, reading, --who knows what I read--her legs bruised, thin, arms battered by the doctor s needle. Her face. Can I say this plainly now? There was light as she grew less. She drifted to it. I m not hungry, not religious, I m in a spot, she told me one afternoon then closed her eyes to that radiance again. Marianne Boruch grew up in Chicago and earned a masters degree from the University of Massachusetts. She teaches at Purdue University and at Warren Wilson College. She lives in West Lafayette, Indiana.
