Seeing that many years have already elapsed since the foundation of the College, and that the first generation has practically passed away, I thought it desirable, before it were too late, to rescue from oblivion some records of the early history of the College. As will be seen, much of the book consists of memories of the late C. W. Penny, for whose notebooks, written after his retirement, I am indebted to his sister, Miss Theresn Penny. I have also, through the courtesy of the present Master, W. W. Vaughan, M.V.O., had access to the letters and reports written by Dr. Benson, which on his death were confided to the custody of the School. Further, I am indebted to the late A. H. Browne, who joined the School when it opened, for a sketch of those earliest years and to E. K. Purnell, O.B.E., for valuable notes on the sixties.
