

Rain of Terror: A Blacklick Valley Mystery (Paperback)

By Donna Cummins

Createspace, United States, 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . IT KEPT ME ON THE EDGE OF MY SEAT.POWERFUL READ! ----S.L. Shelton, author of The Scott Wolfe Thriller Series I HIGHLY RECOMMEND THIS BOOK.KEEPS THE READER GLUED TO THE PAGES! ----Kathryn Dionne, author of The Eleventh Hour Series The child ran through the dark forest, sobbing, breathless, oblivious to the driving rain that soaked his matted hair and plastered the flimsy shirt against his skin. Jagged streaks of lightning cut across the night sky, creating a stark backdrop for the swaying black oaks silhouetted above him. He ran, stumbled, fell, and ran again, heart pounding in his thin chest, the sound of his own blood roaring in his ears. Cold rain stabbed like prickly needles at his face and bare arms, and clutching fingers of underbrush tore at his clothing. But still he ran, driven not by reason or logic but by basic primal instinct-the instinct to survive. A child vanishes on his way home from school as thunder rumbles in the western horizon. Another is abducted from his bedroom on a storm-filled night. A young mother is murdered in her bed...
