Excerpt from Habits and Life Histories of Some Flies of the Family Tabanidae This species was reared from the egg to the adult. The ?y is one of the earliest of its genus to appear in the spring, adults having been taken at Columbus, Ohio, as early as May 20, and it is common during the first half of June. The eggs are placed in masses on various plants that grow in low, wet ground, but I have not observed them over water. The masses are pure shining black when fully colored, rather small for members of the genus, only slightly convex, and accompanied with an unusual amount of cementing material, which nearly obscures the form and arrangement of the individual eggs. The mass in place suggests somewhat a drop of tar or other black substance fastened to the surface of a leaf of the common cattail reed (typha latifolia), a sedge, or some other plant.
