THE FLYING COFFIN AND AMONA: TWO STORIES FROM 100 IN 1 (PAPERBACK)DOWNLOAD

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .This is the BW edition of my second book from 100 in 1. The goal is to write 100 stories in one year. The first book Ten Stories From 100 in 1 has been published and is available. These are the two longest stories written so far. Book 3 Ten More From 100 in 1 will be published this Fall. While sitting in front of a glass of Merlot at the Mezzanine in Old San Juan, Puerto Rico I noticed a framed print of the Mona Lisa. It occurred to me that Mona Isla had one letter in a different place. Mona (Island) came from the Taino Amona meaning middle. It is also the name of a Cacique, which is the title of a Taino Chief. In Europe Mona is a given name and also the name of a Deity from Saxon mythology. I was aware the island was discovered the end of the fifteenth century, which was the same time Leonardo da Vinci lived and painted. The coincidence was too much for me to pass and my imagination stimulated. During the same period of noticing the Mona Lisa print I became aware of an African practice called Londola. The belief being the coffin of the murdered would fly to reveal the guilty. Naturally, this flight is assisted by men, and like a Ouija board can be manipulated. Things are never simple. Initially, the Spanish government charged the colonist with the responsibility to teach Taino Christian ways. The colonists used this power to make Taino slaves for personal profit. Within the following century the Taino, for all practical purposes, were wiped out. The Europeans brought diseases and horrific work conditions....
