Thela Thesis, Netherlands, 2003. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. This study presents a new approach to solving contemporary economic problems. A new approach by academics is called for in a period when participation in the labour market is constantly low in many countries. A combination of economic, mathematical and philosophical perspectives is presented as a model of the economy which can serve as the basis of economic policy. Starting from a state of disequilibrium, it appears to be theoretically possible to realize all macroeconomic objectives, full employment in particular, without any negative results. The author turned to his new ay of thinking during his research and teaching. The book will be of interest to all academics who are actively concerned about the economic problems of the present day.
