James A. Mourey, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.The brain is a curious thing. If you are right-brained you see the world through a creative lens: you appreciate art, you are a lover of music, you are a designer. You are fun to have at a party. If you are left-brained, you see the world through a logical lens: you are a thinker, an organizer, an analyst who prefers data and numbers over pretty pictures and bright, shiny objects. You may not be the life of the party, but you sure are good at planning them. There is just one problem with this: that is not how the brain actually works. In spite of this inaccuracy, the right/left-brained myth survives and continues to shape entire disciplines. In fact, since its inception, marketing has largely been divided between creatives and corporates, agencies and account managers, the sensationally stylish and the stodgy suits. The result? Beautiful advertisements (that serve no business purpose) or functional marketing campaigns (that are dry, unoriginal, and uninspired). But what if we lived in a world where marketing was treated as equal parts art and science? In Fusion, James Mourey, Ph.D., presents a step-by-step framework that integrates business and brilliance to help companies, organizations, and individuals design and execute integrated marketing campaigns from beginning to end. Fusion makes marketing and the creative process accessible to everyone, from small-business entrepreneurs to seasoned corporate marketers, non-profit organizations to individuals refining their personal brand. In each of us is the ability to be right-brained and left-brained, to use our entire brain to dream up marketing campaigns built on a foundation of clearly-defined business objectives without forsaking style or sexiness (which is also sound dating advice). Dr. Mourey begins Fusion by pointing out...
